Dili, 13 August 2026

Excellencies,

I thank Your Excellencies for the kind invitation to participate in the Pre-COP Leaders' Event, to be held in Tuvalu and Fiji on 5 and 6 October 2026. I am pleased to confirm my participation in this important gathering and to join fellow leaders in discussions on climate action, strengthening the resilience of small island states, and multilateral cooperation in the lead-up to COP31.

As an island nation and an Observer Member of the Pacific Islands Forum, Timor-Leste deeply shares the concerns expressed by Your Excellencies regarding the impacts of climate change, including sea-level rise, coastal erosion, food security, and the growing vulnerability of our communities and economies.

I consider it particularly important that Pacific countries make their voices heard with unity and determination, calling for more ambitious climate action, strengthened resilience, and the mobilisation of adequate resources to support those countries that have contributed least to climate change but are among the most severely affected by its consequences.

The Leaders' gathering in Tuvalu and Fiji will also provide an important opportunity to reaffirm our shared commitment to multilateralism and to contribute to ambitious outcomes on the road to COP31, in Antalya.

Allow me to commend Your Excellencies for this important initiative and to assure you of Timor-Leste's commitment to working closely with Tuvalu, Fiji, Australia and other international partners in promoting a collective, fair and effective response to the climate crisis.

I very much look forward to joining Your Excellencies in the Pacific in October and to participating in this important gathering of leaders.

Please accept, Your Excellencies, the assurances of my highest consideration and personal esteem.

J. RAMOS-HORTA

CONCEPT NOTE

Pacific Pre-COP Leaders' Event

..... AUSTRALIA-PACIFIC PARTNERSHIP FOR COP31

The Governments of Tuvalu, Fiji and Australia are partnering to deliver a unique Leaders' event in Tuvalu and Fiji from 5 to 6 October 2026 that will set the scene for the Pre-COP in Fiji, ahead of COP31 in Türkiye.

The Pre-COP Leaders' event will be a high-ambition political moment from the frontlines of the fight against climate change, which aims to shape global action. It will send a resounding signal that climate action remains a global priority around which the international community can coalesce. It comes at a critical juncture as Small Island Developing States face disproportionate impacts of economic and supply chain shocks, underlining the pressing need to accelerate the energy transition.

Themes and outcomes

Invited Leaders will witness firsthand the impact of climate change and adaptation solutions on the atoll nation of Tuvalu, one of the countries most exposed to the accelerating effects of climate change. In Fiji, Leaders will convene for a Pre-COP plenary and adopt a Leaders' Declaration that affirms our collective resolve for ambitious climate action ahead of Pre-COP and COP31. A documentary crew will be filming a feature documentary on the Pacific's story of climate change, resilience, and unity during the Pre-COP Leaders' event, to be premiered at COP31.

The Leaders' event will profile critical climate priorities for Small Island Developing States and the leadership of the Pacific with broad resonance to the global community:

- keeping 1.5°C within reach: supporting global efforts to keep the temperature goal of 1.5°C within reach through meaningful mitigation outcomes;
- enhancing access to climate finance: unlocking accessible and predictable finance – including for adaptation, resilience and loss & damage – with deliverable, practical improvements; and
- the ocean-climate nexus: recognising and elevating ocean-based climate action, science, loss & damage and opportunities for sustainable ocean management including conservation and resilience, and the blue economy.

Arrangements for essential support personnel and media will be accommodated where possible, including through pre-positioning in Tuvalu. Australia, Fiji and Tuvalu are centrally managing accommodation for all delegates. Leaders' accommodation for the Pre-COP Leaders' event will be at Denarau in Fiji and the Funafuti Lagoon Hotel in Tuvalu.

A documentary crew will be filming a feature documentary on the Pacific's story of climate change, resilience, and unity during the Pre-COP Leaders' event which will be premiered at COP31.

Pacific leadership resonating globally

Tuvalu and the Pacific have been at the forefront of international climate advocacy and action. The visit to Tuvalu will demonstrate the lived experience of climate change that is felt by many Small Island Developing States, bringing Leaders to where the impacts of the climate crisis are some of the most acute. A Leaders' Declaration will reinforce the power of acting together and across regions at a time when multilateralism is being challenged.

Frontline climate realities for Small Island Developing States

Leaders' will visit the Tuvalu Coastal Adaptation Project (TCAP), funded by the Green Climate Fund and bilateral donors, which showcases Tuvalu's pioneering approach to climate change adaptation through land reclamation. By increasing the availability of safe, usable land, TCAP is creating space for housing and other essential public services, while strengthening Tuvalu's resilience against sea level rise and storm surges. The project helps protect some of Tuvalu's most vulnerable coastlines and critical infrastructure, enabling Tuvaluans to stay and thrive in their homeland. As a globally recognised climate adaptation initiative, TCAP offers valuable lessons for other nations confronting the impacts of climate change. Leaders will be photographed on the frontlines of adaptation and resilience which will project a powerful image of solidarity with climate vulnerable states facing existential threats and the importance of global action.

Climate impacts on culture

As Tuvalu confronts the challenges of climate change, preserving culture, language and identity remains a national priority. Climate action is not only about protecting land and infrastructure, but about preserving cultural traditions and ways of life for future generations. Tuvaluan life is centred on family, faith and community. Leaders' attendance will provide an opportunity to engage directly with Tuvaluans offering a firsthand perspective on what is at stake for people living in climate-vulnerable nations. Visitors are welcomed through traditional cultural practices including the Fatele – a dance and music performance used to celebrate community events and cultural traditions – examples of what the region is working to protect.

Drive support where it matters most

Climate change is a present-day reality for Tuvalu. The Causeway is a narrow strip of road separating the ocean from the lagoon, and is a powerful illustration of the climate challenges low-lying atoll nations are experiencing today. The Causeway is illustrative to Leaders of the real impacts of coastal erosion and the threats posed by sea-level rise, storm surges and king tides. During periods of severe weather and high tide, seawater can wash across the Causeway, demonstrating the present-day reality of climate change for Tuvalu. A visit to the Causeway provides Leaders with a firsthand perspective on the real and lived impacts of climate change in the Pacific and the challenges facing Small Island Developing States.
